Auxis to provide support to Department of Homeland Security National Communications Systems as SRA International Subcontractor

Auxis' technology and operational analysis offerings coupled with SRA solutions and services support national security and emergency preparedness programs

Washington, DC and Miami, FL - March, 2010 — Auxis today announced its role as a subcontractor to SRA International, Inc. (NYSE: SRX), a leading provider of technology and strategic consulting services and solutions to government organizations and commercial clients, for a contract awarded by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. Auxis is a member of the SRA team that was awarded one of the National Communications System's (NCS) National Security and Emergency Preparedness Scientific, Engineering and Technical Assistance contracts. This five-year, multiple-award, indefinite delivery/indefinite quantity contract has a combined ceiling value of $388.9 million to be competed among all four awardees through the term of the contract.

In support of NCS' national security and emergency preparedness programs, Auxis will provide NCS with operational analysis, priority communications support, emerging technologies analysis, and architecture modeling and analysis services in an effort to assist in consolidating communication architectures.

"Auxis is pleased to be working with SRA in supporting this critical component of our nation's infrastructure. Our dedication to providing value to our clients aligns well with the NCS mission, and with SRA's core values." – Nancy Wolff, Director of Government Services
